WIN A STAY AT THE KHYBER HIMALAYAN RESORT & SPA, GULMARG

CONTEST

WHERE ARE YOU?

This vast landscape in South America, stretching across 6,500 miles, consists of a substance that is commonly used as seasoning in food; the site also has a hotel made of the same material. A result of the transformations of several prehistoric lakes over millennia, the area is rich in lithium. It is also a breeding ground for several species of pink flamingos. When it rains, the land turns into a gigantic mirror, reflecting everything, from the sky to the surrounding mountains, in a way that seems to blur the horizon. Where are you? PRİYANKA AGARWAL Email your answers to whereareyou@condenast.in and you could win a stay at The Khyber Himalayan Resort & Spa, Gulmarg. See overleaf for details—and look out for the answer in our next issue, out in December.
